Beautifully sited in the heart of prestigious Biltmore Forest, this stunning Georgian Revival estate, designed by Erle Stillwell, blends classic elegance with park-like tranquility. Boasting nine bedrooms in the main house and three-bedrooms in the guest house, its symmetrical facade, large windows, and classic proportions showcase architectural grandeur on 4.67 landscaped acres.

A greenhouse adds botanical charm, enhancing the property's serene atmosphere. The estate also includes a guest house mirroring the main home's style, offering privacy for visitors and extending the property's appeal. The guest house adds an extra layer of versatility to this already exceptional property.

This residence is a piece of Biltmore Forest's rich history and owning this home is not just a privilege; it is a connection to the heritage of a community that values architectural excellence and a commitment to preserving its legacy.
